

Bright Futures Camp

Open Your Hearts and Homes

In the entire world, there is but one priceless commodity that ensures our future . . . children. But around the world too many of these children are living in orphanages. The sad fact is that the older the child gets, the less likely they are to be adopted. To increase the opportunity of adoption for older children, the Gladney Center for Adoption created Bright Futures Camps.

This summer Gladney is hosting a Bright Futures Camps . . . in China!

Bright Futures Camp – China

Rather than bringing children to the United States, adventurous prospective parents are invited to travel to China August 9 – August 16, 2009. What an exciting opportunity to brighten the life of a child living in an orphanage, and experience the culture first hand! By going to China, families can spend more time with their child before placement and have the opportunity to experience Chinese culture first hand.

Could You Be That Family?

Gladney is looking for families who are willing to open their hearts and homes to children from Chinese orphanages. For many of these children this once-in-a-lifetime experience could be their only opportunity to find a forever family.

Through each program, Gladney maintains its commitment to creating bright futures through adoption around the world. We understand how difficult it is to make a final selection regarding which agency or attorney to trust to guide you through the adoption process. For this reason, Gladney conducts workshops for prospective adoptive parents of older children that cover detailed and in-depth information on our overall philosophy and services, as well as our flexible adoption programs.

If you're a couple interested in adopting through Gladney's Bright Futures Camp, please email amyc@gladney.org or call Amy Curtis at 817/922.6061. The next steps include:

- Completing an information sheet
- Attending a private orientation
- Completing the application and home study process
